White House Press Secretary Quote on College Radio Day:

“I applaud the efforts of college radio stations across the country, to participate and promote College Radio Day. College radio has been an institution on college campuses for decades. And there are previous generations of Americans that have learned the broadcast industry by volunteering at college radio stations. There are also generations of college students that have been exposed to new music and new ideas by listening to college radio stations. So I certainly want to compliment and encourage those students that are involved in college radio and urge you to continue to keep college radio the kind of rich and independent source of entertainment that has long served college students and college campuses so well.” - Josh Earnest, Assistant to the President and Press Secretary
